

Scolmore is proud to support a military veteran family in need

In the episode to be shown this Wednesday, 6th November, the DIY SOS team returns to Veterans Street in Manchester, where, two years ago, with the help of Prince William and Prince Harry, they launched their most ambitious project yet - transforming a derelict street into a vibrant community for veterans and local people. This time they build the final home for decorated former soldier and single dad Simon Flores, who lost a foot in a roadside bomb attack during a patrol in Iraq.

“Scolmore Group was very proud to be able to play a small part in helping create a new home for Simon and his three young children, by supplying a selection of wiring accessories and lighting products to be fitted in the specially adapted home that will give the family the fresh start they need.” commented Scolmore group marketing director, Marie Parry.
